Mayor's Message

Brian C. Wahler, Mayor

A few months ago, people across America found out what we have long known: Piscataway is one of the best places to live in the United States.

Money Magazine placed Piscataway Township on its prestigious 2019 Best Places to Live in America list, ranking us as #68 in its Top 100 of the country and #1 in New Jersey. The quality of life we enjoy in our community has been awarded a prominent and influential seal of approval. Many factors were considered with, "... the greatest weight on economic factors, housing, health and safety, diversity and cost of living."

Making this prominent list is a result of the Township Council and I striving to be wise stewards of the municipal budget and making sure that Piscataway remains an affordable and attractive community. A key component in our efforts is creating economic development that gives opportunities to our residents and adds corporate revenue to our local tax base.

By working with businesses, we were able to turn several abandoned office buildings and vacant brownfields into thriving centers of commerce with state-of-the-art logistics centers that have easy access to I-287. That is how we have been able to provide two years of a 12.8 percent lower municipal tax rate while building a $32 million Community Center with no residents' tax monies and maintaining an "AA+ stable" bond rating with Standard & Poor's.

For example, on the western side of town is a large swath of land that during World War II was the site of Voice of America radio antennas from which the name Telegraph Road came. After the war it became a sizable home to chemical processing facilities. Hundreds of crews working around the clock would manufacturer petrochemicals and plastics for decades for the Bakelite Corporation, Union Carbide and Dow Chemical.

Yet the economy changed and the land was vacated, ecologically strained by years of chemical activity and its value on the tax rolls greatly diminished.

After working diligently to recruit interest, private industry came into our Township, remediated the environmental contamination and built the Rockefeller Group Logistics Center. The site is now home to facilities of Best Buy, Fujitsu, Humanscale, KISS Beauty Products, Kuehne & Nagel and SHI International Corp. These companies are providing good paying jobs to hard working residents, operating on environmentally restored soil and funding the construction of our Community Center.

With continued economic growth and more improvements to our Township such as refurbished parks and resurfaced roads, we look forward to continued prosperity for our entire community.

Strongest Statewide Ban on Plastics in the Nation

by Senator Bob Smith

From the deepest trenches of the ocean to remote mountain ranges, plastics are found everywhere. Everyone has heard the scientific warnings about our creation of a “plastic planet” and about the looming public health impacts of our plastic crisis. We have all seen the troubling photos and know that plastics are choking our oceans and waterways, negatively impacting ecosystems here in New Jersey and across the globe. For some, the bad news can be, at times, overwhelming. The good news is that we are working to do our part to shift away from single-use plastics through the use of alternative products.

This legislative session, I have worked to craft a comprehensive plastics bill (S2776) banning stores and food service businesses from providing single-use plastic bags, plastic straws and polystyrene foam. As Chair of the Senate Environment and Energy Committee, I have invited experts from various institutions, including Rutgers and Princeton universities, to participate in committee meetings and testify at public hearings on the topic of single-use plastics and plastic waste.

One of the topics discussed was the dangers of microplastics. Studies have revealed that when plastics break down over time they become tiny microplastics. Carcinogens, bacteria, viruses and a host of awful things attach themselves to microplastics. Microplastics in our waters are filtered and eaten by fish and move up the food chain through human consumption. Research published in the Journal of Environmental Science and Technology calculated that a person consumes about 50,000 microplastic particles per year.

There has been a national movement away from single-use plastics. Hawaii has a ban on plastic bags while California has banned all single-use plastics. Cities such as New York, Los Angeles, San Diego, Boston, Honolulu and Seattle have banned plastic bags. A number of municipalities in New Jersey have already moved to ban plastic bags including Jersey City, Hoboken and Belmar to name a few.

In 2019, Maine, Maryland, and Vermont passed laws prohibiting polystyrene food service products, and more than 100 municipalities around the country have similar ordinances. Last year, a number of companies decided to eliminate all plastic straws, most notably Starbucks, American Airlines and Hilton hotels. A study recently reported that Americans use 172 million straws each day. Senate Bill 2776 allows New Jersey businesses to provide straws to individuals with a disability or medical condition, upon request.

Many years ago when I introduced the first ban on single-use plastic bags, my office received threatening calls, letters and emails. Today, the calls are supportive and the letters from schoolchildren and their teachers reinforce that we are moving in a positive direction. The cultural shift is promising. We actively reduce, reuse and recycle, and many of us have our own reusable grocery bags. Combatting the plastic crisis will be a herculean effort, a country-wide mobilization. It’s time for action here in the Garden State. For us, a statewide ban is the most proactive means to accomplish this task and makes the most sense. It is crucial that we get the use of single-use plastics under control.

Piscataway Spray Park

The outdoor Piscataway Spray Park is now being built concurrently alongside the Piscataway Community Center with both slated to open this summer.

The large, pirate-themed spray park will have two open flume water slides, two spray cannons, a deck geyser and a large supersplash bucket connected to a ship’s bow surrounded by hose sprayers and arches. Adjacent to the splashpad of the park will be covered table seating for families to enjoy the outdoors. The spray park will be in the northwest corner of the Community Center lot and will nicely complement its indoor, three-pool aquatic center.

“We are thrilled to add more family fun in Piscataway,” Mayor Brian C. Wahler said. “We are confident that every good weather day will bring many young children and their parents to this wonderful spray park.”

In addition to the indoor and outdoor water amenities, the Community Center will also have a full-size basketball court with overhead running track, large fitness center, dance and art studios, a teen lounge, and men’s, women’s and family locker rooms.

While the Spray Park has long been considered Phase II of the Community Center project, breaking ground on it was not expected to happen until the future. However, with construction of the Community Center moving ahead of schedule and with funds available, Township officials decided to move forward with the Spray Park now so the entire complex could be enjoyed this summer.

Piscataway Cultural Arts Commission

Each month the Piscataway Cultural Arts Commission invites you to view the work of a different artist on display in Town Hall, Monday-Friday, 9 a.m.-12:30 p.m. and 1:30-4:30 p.m.

In January, the work of Lorraine Ledbetter focusing on dogs will be featured. Jerry Booker will exhibit portraits and landscapes in recognition of Black History Month in February. For Women's History Month in March, portraits with biographies of women whom have made significant contributions in science, civil rights, women's rights, business and many other areas throughout our history will be displayed. Often these extraordinary women were unsung heroes working at great personal sacrifice. Come see how many of them you recognize. Alongside the Women in History portraits, quilter Ellary Pray will be exhibiting her unique works.

Looking to display your art? Artwork can be any medium as long as it adheres to weight, fragility, non-controversial subject matter and family friendly guidelines. You will need a minimum of twenty pieces to display. If you do not have that many pieces, we can sometimes combine your work with another artist. Before accepted for display, we need to see some of your work in person or via a website. For further information, please call Exhibit Coordinator Barbara Bridgers at (732) 752-2465 or Commission Chair, Kitty Juttner (732) 563-4117.
